

Michael P. Coogan
Director, Corporate Responsibility, Leidos

Mike Coogan is a 15 year veteran of the government contracting industry, with expertise in corporate responsibility, community relations, planning process improvement, and market assessment. He is currently Director of Corporate Responsibility at Leidos, a national security, health and engineering company, where he is building “responsible corporate citizenship” through a combined corporate responsibility and community relations function.

Mike is focused on engendering employee volunteerism, facilitating employee giving programs, and deploying corporate-level charitable donations that are aligned with company mission, values, and business goals. Mike also maintains strong partnerships with local chambers, national charities, and other related partners, and is responsible for publishing the company’s corporate responsibility report in accordance with the internationally recognized Global Reporting Initiative (GRI) framework.

Prior to his corporate responsibility role, Mike was VP of policy and analysis and strategic plans and processes at SAIC. In these roles, he oversaw myriad responsibilities, including functional-area planning and process improvement initiatives, federal budget and government policy tracking, and various market and competitive intelligence activities. Prior to SAIC, Mike held roles managing market and competitive assessment and strategic planning efforts at Northrop Grumman Corporation and Federal Sources, Inc. (now Deltek).

Born and raised in Pennsylvania, he is a graduate of the Pennsylvania State University and the East Carolina University with degrees in history and anthropology. He is an active member of the Virginia, Fairfax County, and Reston Chambers of Commerce, including Board positions, as well a member of the Board of Directors for Celebrate Fairfax! and a member of the Corporate Responsibility Officers Association (CROA). In addition to being active in the community, Mike’s personal pursuits include family, motorcycling, running, and wine.
